

Dow Jones Value RBP Dividend Focus Portfolio, Series 7

Investment Objective

The Dow Jones Value RBP Dividend Focus Portfolio, Series 7 ("Trust") seeks to provide total return primarily through capital appreciation and current dividend income by investing in a portfolio of common stocks.

Trust Highlights

The Trust's investment strategy uses a quantitative selection process developed by Transparent Value, LLC ("Transparent Value"), an affiliate of the Sponsor, to help the Sponsor determine the constituents of the portfolio.

Required Business Performance®

RBP® seeks to measure the performance that is implied in the price of a company's stock. To determine the RBP® probability for a given company, the company's required revenue (revenue that the company is required to generate over the next 12 months) is calculated through a ten-year forward discounted free cash flow ("FCF") model. The ten-year forward FCF model includes the perpetuity growth rate, capital expenditures, operating margins and potentially scaling forward growth rates. With this required forward FCF and historical company performance from the past twelve quarters, a distribution curve is fit to the data and derives an RBP® probability (expressed as a percentage from 0 to 100%).

Please be aware that there is no assurance that the past performance measures on which the RBP® Methodology relies will be repeated in the future or any assurance that Transparent Value will be able to successfully execute the strategy.

Making the Case for Dividend-Paying Stocks

Historically, dividends accounted for a significant portion of the domestic stock market's total return. For the 22-year period ended 12/31/10, the S&P 500 Index's total return outperformed its price return* by approximately 332%.¹ As the chart below illustrates, stocks of companies that pay dividends outperformed the alternatives shown.

DEFINITIONS: The S&P 500 Index is a capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks. The index is designed to measure performance of the broad domestic economy through changes in the aggregate market value of 500 stocks representing all major industries. The S&P 500 Geometric Equal-Weighted Total Return Index is an equal-weight version of the S&P 500 Index. The indexes are unmanaged and it is not possible to invest directly in the indexes. A stock is classified as a Dividend-Payer if it indicates that it is going to pay a dividend within the year. Non Dividend-Paying Stocks are classified as such if the stock's indicated annual dividend is zero.

RISK CONSIDERATIONS As with all investments, you may lose some or all of your investment in the Trust. No assurance can be given that the Trust's investment objective will be achieved. The Trust also might not perform as well as you expect. This can happen for reasons such as these: • Securities prices can be volatile. • Due to the current state of the economy, the value of the securities held by the Trust may be subject to steep declines or increased volatility due to changes in performance or perception of the issuers. • Share prices or dividend rates on the securities in the Trust may decline during the life of the Trust. • The Trust includes securities issued by companies in the financial sector which are subject to the adverse effects of economic recession, decreases in the availability of capital, volatile interest rates, portfolio concentrations in geographic markets and in commercial and residential real estate loans, and competition from new entrants in their fields of business. Negative developments initially relating to the subprime mortgage market and subsequently spreading to other parts of the economy, have adversely affected credit and capital markets worldwide and significantly impacted financial sector companies. • The Trust includes real estate investment trusts ("REITs") which may concentrate their investments in specific geographic areas or in specific property types, such as, hotels, shopping malls, residential complexes and office buildings. The value of the REITs and other real estate securities and the ability of such securities to distribute income may be adversely affected by several factors beyond the control of the issuer of the security. • The Trust invests in U.S.-listed foreign securities which present additional risk due to such factors as adverse economic, currency, political, social or regulatory developments in a country, including government seizure of assets, excessive taxation, limitations on the use or transfer of assets, the lack of liquidity or regulatory controls with respect to certain industries or differing legal and/or accounting standards. • The Trust invests in securities issued by small-capitalization and mid-capitalization companies which customarily involve more investment risk than securities of larger capitalization companies. Small-capitalization and mid-capitalization companies may have limited product lines, markets or financial resources and may be more vulnerable to adverse general market or economic developments. • Inflation may lead to a decrease in the value of assets or income from investments. • The Sponsor does not actively manage the portfolio. Please see the Trust prospectus for more complete risk information.
